

Peter Wolford

From: Peter Wolford
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2019 11:10 PM
To: neil.jacobs@noaa.gov
Subject: falsifying weather report

Dr. Jacobs,

I depend on weather reports and forecast for my life on ferry flights. Often the validity of them is essential to the completion of an 18 to 25-hour flight in a plane across the ocean for the final hours of the flight.

Allowing someone to use and deliberately alter a weather forecast should not be tolerated no matter who that individual is. And, furthermore, to have the gall to criticize any weather organization or person for correcting such an action is deplorable.

Whomever the person who is who said it was ok to present a forecast that is days old (and even enhance the alleged threat intensity) should be prosecuted. Also, the President should be prosecuted for giving out an improper forecast. It is flat out wrong to not take action about an action that can result in devastation to people and their property. Allowing it in one setting just makes it so others will feel free to do it in other circumstances.

I hope you find whomever it was that said the corrective forecast should not have been made and then take actions against both parties involved.

Sincerely Yours,

Peter Wolford