

Heather Evans

From: Heather Evans
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2019 5:01 PM
To: neil.jacobs@noaa.gov
Subject: Can't thread that needle

According to the slides you cited in your repudiation of NWS Birmingham, at the time of the president's tweet there was a 10% chance southeast Alabama would experience tropical-storm-force-winds, not that it was in the path of Hurricane Dorian. The concurrent 5-day cone of the storm's projected path clearly showed it moving up the eastern seaboard, and had done so for the preceding 24 hours. The president may not know the difference, but you do. You should be ashamed of yourself. Resign.